英国から来たジェントルマンMr. デー氏の「なんじゃこりゃあっ！にっぽん」

As the internet becomes more advanced and people are online much more than before there has been a rise in criminal activity, theft of data from credit cards, with personal information being a prime target.

Though in Japan I discovered a way of buying things on the internet without using my credit cards. you simply say that you will pay at a convenience store and you are given a reference number to enter and you can pay in the convenience store in cash without using your bank card at all! Shopping online has always been a concern for me but in Japan I just love the fact that there is a system for people like me. It's the small attention to detail in Japan that I feel is often missed back home in England.
